

職場事奉課程簡介 Marketplace Ministry Course Description: (PT/BC) 2 credit elective (Zoom)

關於職場事奉，許多教會的領袖未能適當地教導，在講道中也很少提到基督徒跟工作這方面相關的議題。本課程將裝備教會領袖和信徒如何在教會以外的工作場所，以聖經為根基，藉著與復活的基督聯合來完成創造--文化使命。我們會研讀到基督徒生活的每一個層面都是用來服事神、服事人，以及管理世界。我們會研讀這些根基如何連結學術上的主題以及公開職場的實務性。在課堂上也會涵蓋其他主題，包括：職業性騷擾、倫理、道德的良善、商場的誘惑等等。外請講員將分享他們的親身經驗，如何應用基督徒的美德，在職場上做見證。 Unfortunately, many church leaders have failed to adequately teach and preach about the work-related concerns of Christians. This course will try to prepare both church leaders and Christians working outside the church with biblical foundations for fulfilling the creation-cultural mandate in union with the risen Lord Jesus Christ. We will study how all aspects of the Christian life are service to God, people, and creation-care. We will study how these foundations relate to academic subjects and to work in the public marketplace.

Student assessment criteria (all assignments to be emailed to kenmcalpin@earthlink.net). Be SURE to enter the topic you are covering in the subject line and to make clear it is for CRTS:

1. (20 %). You will present the results of a high-level Bible study – 5 pages in length, due at the second weekend session. I will assign portions of the Scripture to be reviewed by each student, for this assignment. Within your section of the Scripture you will:
 - a. Identify the 5 most prominent people within your assigned Scriptures. (Some of you may think it is unclear who are the 5 “most prominent” are in your section. If so, you may simply pick 5 that are a significant part of the story and do your assignment based on that).
 - b. Address things such as: What kind of jobs (note - they may have had more than one) did each person have during their lifetime? What relationship did those jobs have to their main contributions to the Biblical narrative? What role did those jobs play in their personal growth (example: what kinds of things did they learn from those jobs)? Were their most significant contributions to the larger Biblical story due primarily to their occupation or for some other reason or, in some cases, perhaps both? Explain your answers from the Scripture.
 - c. Since you will be doing only one page per Biblical character, these will necessarily be at a high level. Your grade will be based on: your wise selection of people to discuss, your evidence of careful study, your clear explanation of your analysis and your discussion of this assignment with your fellow students – in class.
2. (20%). You will take two of the 5 people from assignment # 1 and go into more detail. Based on the Scriptural evidence, you will provide 15-20 minute in-class presentation that addresses the following:
 - a. Be advised, you must show very careful and Scriptural thought in providing these analyses.
 - b. What distinctions, if any, did your two people make between the secular and the sacred in their various jobs? Explain your answer, using Scripture. If the evidence seems unclear, explain why that is the case and what you can best conclude from other Scriptural evidence.
 - c. Address areas such as the following – how did being a believer in the Living God, affect their attitude toward the performance of their work? How did it affect the way that they did their work? What kind of limitations did their being believers have on how they did their work, compared to their neighbors? What kind of advantages or insights did they have for their work, since they were believers? How was their work affected by the curse of the Fall? How did they work to overcome the affects of the curse?
 - d. Finally – what do you believe that Christian business people, in your future congregations, should learn from your study?

3. (30%). This will be a 5-page paper, which you will be prepared to discuss in class with your fellow students and to share with them. This will be due at the last weekend of the class. Both the paper and the class discussion will be part of this grade.
 - a. Find a good example (may be someone personally known to you or you may simply find it through research) of how a Christian business person or company has positively impacted their communities by the way that they conduct their business.
 - b. Address things such as how their work benefits both believers and non-believers in their communities, the economic impacts of their work (both in their personal lives and in the lives of others in their communities), the social impacts (how it affects their local society), how their work helps them to engage their broader communities and what impact their business may have in helping to spread the Gospel.
 - c. Based on this study - provide and discuss at least one good example of an idea that now occurs to you, for the business people in your churches, as to how they might be able to use their business skills to have a specific impact in your home community. More examples are better. Explain these ideas in enough details to show how they could benefit your local community in ways discussed in paragraph "b", above.
 - d. The teacher will model this assignment, to some degree, before your assignment is due – primarily to give you an example of a way to think about this.
4. (30%) Will be from either a single final exam or from tests which the teacher will schedule in advance. These will test your grasp of the lectures, reading and class assignments.

Lectures and Class Discussions (6 weekends, two weeks apart). Each weekend consists of a Friday night class from 18:30 – 20:50 and a Saturday morning class (0900-11:20), with possible lunch discussions following, for those interested.

- 1) Reading: Students will read Joy at Work and the accompanying Bible Study Companion by Bakke, Hendricks and Smith. 工作靈修學(附 DVD)--微笑工作十堂課 / Joy at Work Bible Study Companion 作者：BAKKE 等 (Raymond Bakke 等) 譯者：出版社：校園書房出版社

Students must answer the questions at the end of each chapter of the workbook, in writing. We will discuss the book and workbook in the last weekend session and material from these readings will be included in the Final Exam.

Weekend 1 – A Biblical/Theological understanding of the reason for work, its theological significance, its importance in our lives and its eternal purpose. How the call to work affects reflects grace, even after the Fall, discussion of the impacts of the fall on work in the present age, the use of the means of grace at work in the present age. How the church can help its business people to be instruments of the gospel through their business dealings. Discussion of the dualistic view of work/faith vs. a more Biblical view and the implications of both. This will include more of a New Testament focus on how people should view their work as part of their participation in Christ's Kingdom

Weekend 2 - Each student will turn in assignment one and will be prepared to discuss it, in class. The implications of man's creation on work ethics inside our companies – a different view of ethics based on a theological understanding the God's grace in giving man the privilege of joyful imitation/sharing of God's creative nature/being through meaningful and creative work. Beginning the longer-term discussion of ethics outside of our companies (in the interaction of our companies with the broader world) for business people in a fallen world. We will use Biblical examples of where the ethical responsibility may be different when relating to a fallen and sometimes hostile world and the challenge of assuring that self-interest does not allow us to blur lines where the Scripture does not clearly permit. Discussion of things like the Mockler Pledge as a means of assuring that pastors intentionally engage the business people in their churches.

Weekend 3 – Each student will do presentations per assignment two – full class discussion/evaluation of each presentation. Begin discussion of basic economic principles for non-business people. What does the Bible say about property rights, the value of ownership? How are those things reflected in the character and nature of God? How does this view affect how people are motivated, how they learn/grow by engaging God’s world (after the Fall) and how does it affect both Christian and non-Christian economic blessing or cursing? What is our obligation to the poor and what are the best ways to help them?

Weekend 4 – Further discussion of basic economics. Your teacher takes a free market, free trade view of economics. He will articulate why he believes that those things, despite their enormous shortcomings, may be the best reflection of the Scripture and also the best response to mankind’s fallen nature. However, students should be aware that excellent (Biblically based) theologians have taken different approaches. So, as an example of this, we will briefly discuss a typical Puritan view, as articulated by Edwards and others – which may have supported the European tendency toward socialism. Students will be able to clearly articulate the condition/nature of free markets, regulated markets, the challenges of both as well as the economic concepts of things such as marginal utility and specialization. This will include a discussion of globalism vs nationalism and we will put this all in the context of the two dominant economic powers of the current time (China and the USA) along with their implications for business people and the world, at large. Discussion of the role of debt (both personal and national) along with its implications. Students will be expected to watch a video, which is available in Chinese – explains debt creation and its impact on society. This must be watched/understood BEFORE weekend 4’s class meetings (students strongly urged to take notes as you watch the videos).

Weekend 5 – Teacher will present a high-level example of class assignment #3. A wrap up of economics discussion (including anything we could not finish in weekend 4). Discussion of the current way that capitalism and trade are actually working today (hint: there is very little free trade and massive world-wide governmental interference in markets). Brief discussion of the context of the near economic collapse of 2007-2009, which may still be playing out over the next decade or longer. Then to a very high-level discussion of the theology of money - students will be expected to be able to clearly articulate the definition and purpose of money as well as why money seems to work in ways that have spiritual (not merely physical) impacts on society as a pervasive and historical “god”, in opposition to our Lord. This will include a broader discussion of materialism - mammon, why mankind places such a high value on it, why it is so often a major driving force in people’s lives, why people still tend to value it instead of valuing the eternal (despite both history and the Scripture clearly demonstrating that it often does not even benefit us in a very temporal sense). How materialism promotes secularism and how the church should respond. This will particularly be in the context of how pastors may better be able to understand the motivation, challenges, etc. of their business people and how to best keep them from being captured by this false god.

Weekend 6 – students will have been doing a study on chapters 1-8 of the Book Joy at Work, by Bakke and the related workbook, throughout the course. It is possible that, if student/teacher schedules permit, we may schedule one or two evening discussion times (outside of the normal weekend meetings) to discuss these readings. But, in any event, we will wrap up the overall lessons of the work/work book and its implications for ministry to our people. Then, we will have student presentations of the major assignment # 3 and conclude with a discussion of how we can energize our business people to become strong advocates for Christ, in our local communities. This will be followed up with a final exam (at another date) which will address everything covered in the class.

Mr. McAlpin has an MBA in International Management (University of Dallas) and served in a range of roles, including Executive level roles, for some Fortune 100 companies in the Aerospace and Electronics industries. His business background includes 30 years of international business experience in more than two dozen countries. He also has an MDIV (Westminster Theological Seminary, 2005) and was ordained as a Ruling Elder in the Presbyterian Church in America, in 2000. He was involved, to various degrees, in 4 church plants in the USA, including his service as the Steering Committee Chair for Redeemer Presbyterian Church in Waco, TX, where he also served as an active elder for 10 years, after it became a Particularized church. He has been active in Redeemer's (New York) City to City Asia network, serving as a Gospel coach and is also working with CTC Asia to see if they can develop a similar coaching program for Christian business people.
